NOTES:

What We Do Know:

Beowulf is the oldest surviving English poem. It's written in Old English (or Anglo-Saxon), which is the basis for the language we speak today.

Some of the characters in the poem actually existed.

The only copy of the manuscript was written sometime around the 11th century A.D. (1000s),

NOTES:

What We Don't Know:

1) When it was exactly written.

2) Who wrote it.

3) How much is based upon historical truth.

SETTING OF BEOWULF

SETTING OF BEOWULF:

Although Beowulf was written in English, it is set in what is now Sweden, where a tribe called the Geats lived.

The story may take place as early as 400 or 500 A.D.

BEOWULF COMPARISON ACTIVITY GRENDEL PART 1

Objective: Detail and appreciate the differences between the Francis B. Gummere (Harvard Classics) & Seamus Heaney translations.

Instructions:

1) circle at least 5 examples of alliteration, underline examples assonance, and highlight at least 2 examples of kennings (10 points).

2) While reading, highlight differences in word choice and write differences you observe with word connotations that you found significant. After reading, in a short, well written essay, explain at least three differences of HOW the word choice and word connotations affect your understanding of the events of this epic. Be sure not only to explain what the differences are, but also explain WHY the words chosen are important (40 points).

We will practice part 1 together as a class!

BEOWULF COMPARISON ACTIVITY GRENDEL PART 1

Translation by Francis B. Gummere

With envy and anger an evil spirit endured the dole in his dark abode, that he heard each day the din of revel high in the hal: there harbs rang out, clear song of the singer. He sang who knew tales of the early time of man, how the Almighty made the earth, fairest fields enfolded by water, set, triumphant, sun and moon for a ight to lighten the land-dwellers, and braided oright the breast of earth with limbs and leaves, made life for all of mortal beings that breathe and move.

Translation by Seamus Heaney

Then a powerful demon, a prowler through the dark, nursed a hard grievance. It harrowed him to hear the din of the loud banquet every day in the hall, the harp being struck and the clear song of a skilled poet telling with mastery of man's beginnings, how the Almighty had made the earth a gleaming plain girdled with waters; in His splendour He set the sun and the moon to be earth's lamplight, lanterns for men, and filled the broad lap of the world with branches and leaves; and quickened life in every other thing that moved.

So lived the clansmen in cheer and revel a winsome life, till one began to fashion evils, that field of hell. Grendel this monster grim was called, march-riever mighty, in moorland living, in fen and fastness; fief of the giants the hapless wight a while had kept since the Creator his exile doomed. On kin of Cain was the killing avenged by sovran God for slaughtered Abel. Ill fared his feud, and far was he driven, for the slaughter's sake, from sight of men. Of Cain awoke all that woful breed, Etins and elves and evil-spirits, as well as the giants that warred with God weary while: but their wage was paid them!

So times were pleasant for the people there until finally one, a fiend out of hell, began to work his evil in the world. Grendel was the name of this grim demon haunting the marches, marauding round the heath and the desolate fens; he had dwelt for a time in misery among the banished monsters, Cain's clan, whom the Creator had outlawed and condemned as outcasts. For the killing of Abel the Eternal Lord had exacted a price: Cain got no good from committing that murder no because the Almighty made him anathema and out of the curse of his exile there sprang ogres and elves and evil phantoms and the giants too who strove with God time and again until He gave them their reward.

WRITING ABOUT STYLE & DICTION (WORD CHOICE)

Questions to Address in Your Response:

- Which of the authors best captures the oral tradition by use alliteration, consonance, assonance, and kennings? Why?
- What are some examples of different words used to communicate the same idea? Which word is more effective in your opinion? Why?

Example:

The Gummere Translation seems to better capture oral tradition of the epic, while the Heaney Translation expresses ideas more clearly in a modern context. Gummere, uses a kenning and more alliteration in part 1 writing, "Grendel this monster grim was called, march-riever mighty." March-riever mighty is a great stylistic device as it is highly alliterative, easy to remember, and descriptive of Grendel. The Heaney translation, on the other hand, seems to use words with stronger connotations. In the same section, Heaney writes, "Grendel was the name of this grim demon, haunting the marches." Haunting for me holds a stronger image than march-riever.

Translation by Seamus Heaney

Then as dawn brightened and the day broke Grendel's powers of destruction were plain: their wassail was over, they wept to heaven and mourned under morning. Their mighty prince, 130 the storied leader, sat stricken and helpless, humiliated by the loss of his guard, bewildered and stunned, staring aghast at the demon's trail, in deep distress. He was numb with grief, but got no respite for one night later merciless Grendel struck again with more gruesome murders. Malignant by nature, he never showed remorse.
